Not illustrated. 1882 Excerpt: . . . VII. CHANNING--HERESY AND REFORM. T AM sick of opinions; I am weary to hear--them; my soul loathes this frothy food. Give me solid and substantial religion, give me a humble, gentle lover of God and man; a man full of mercy and good faith, without partiality and without hypocrisy; a man laying himself out in the work of faith, the patience of hope, the labor of love. Let my soul be with these Christians, wheresoever they are, and whatsoever opinion they are of. Let not the scrupulous reader be alarmed at this liberalism; these are not the words of the heresiarch, William Ellery Channing. They were written by one John Wesley, late fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford. But we venture the opinion, that, had John Wesley known personally William Ellery Channing, he would have drawn his portrait with such lines as those we cite....
