Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Across the board, statistics show that Americans carry a staggering amount of debt and not just from traditional investments like home mortgages and college tuition. Today, people take on credit card debt to finance vacations, buy cars, and purchase the trappings of lifestyles they cannot afford. And none of this stuff makes anyone happier or healthier. Award-winning author, veteran minister, and financial literacy teacher John Evans offers an alternative vision of money and possessions in this down-to-earth workbook. Asking hard but important questions about priorities, values, and choices, In God We Trust guides people toward a healed perspective on money based on the principles laid out in the Bible. By offering an alternative to modern culture's obsession with wealth and status as indicators of success and value, Evans provides readers with the tools for escaping the hamster wheel of consumerism, reprioritizing money and things, and ultimately repairing the damage done to our bank accounts, our relationships, and our hearts.
